An Overview from the Office of Cannabis Management (OCM)

January 17, 2023

What is Cannabis?

- Cannabis Sativa is a versatile plant used for medicinal, industrial, and food purposes for thousands of years.
- It contains hundreds of compounds, including cannabinoids, terpenes and flavonoids that, when they interact, have different effects on the mind and body. Most common and well known are THC, known for its euphoric feeling, and CBD, which offers the same potential benefits without the same “high.”
- Hemp is the same plant as adult-use cannabis, it’s just one that contains 0.3% or less THC content and as a result is not a federally controlled substance.

Industrial	Food	Wellness	Recreational	Medical	Pharma
Fiber: textiles, construction materials, “hempcrete”	Nutrition: hemp seeds and oil, hemp protein powder	Dietary Supplements: CBD, terpenes, cosmetics	Products used similar to alcohol or tobacco	Medical grade products, practitioner oversight	FDA approved clinical trials: Epidiolex
